After a rather controversial but deeply rewarding stint of 21 years in this schizophrenic city on the Potomac, during which I now confess for the first time that I did willfully and without malice participate surreptitiously and otherwise in calculated annual raids upon the Federal Treasury on behalf of the health of the American people I am grateful for, and astounded by, the audacity and courage of all of you good people who are publicly and openly risking fortune, favor and political futures by attending this Testimonial for a maverick who believes that Human Capital - rather than the devalued gold at Fort Knox - is the most precious resource of the fair Republic.

In appreciation of your kindness, I hereby invite one and all to join the streamlined 1992-Health Fosse. We guarantee you the budget-busting thrill of a lifetime. We're a little short of horses - we rented out quite a few stallions for the upcoming primary Sweepstakes - so BYOH. See you at the Hill.

Gratefully,
Mike Gorman
